Having completed the study unit the student is able to	- analyse the meaning of client empowerment in connection to anti-oppressive and anti-discriminatory approaches to client counseling. - evaluate the impact of cultural difference on the counselling relationship - build an empowering alliance with the client, by analysing situations from the client's viewpoint - use basic and advanced counselling skills - advocate a counselling approach which examines the structural influences on a client's life
Previous studies	Identity Formation 5 CR. and Identity Development 10 CR.
Learning objectives	How do concepts of empowerment apply to counseling? How do we communicate across cultures? Why is it necessary to develop culturally sensitive counseling approaches? What are the specific skills required for good counseling?
Contents	This study unit develops a student's competence in building an empowering relationship with a client. S/he gains client-centred counselling skills and consultation methods. This is based on an active understanding of interpersonal and intercultural communication and interviewing strategies as well as the promotion of a more anti-oppressive and egalitarian counseling approach.
